DESERT DELIGHTS AT DESERT MUSEUM DESSERT NIGHT

TUCSON (February 27, 2014) If you're into gourmet cooking or just a self-proclaimed "foodie", take note. The Desert Museum is scheduled to host its first ever Desert Dessert Night on Saturday evening, May 24 from 6 to 10 p.m. In keeping with its mission to encourage appreciation of the Sonoran desert, the Museum is partnering with Tucson Originals restaurants and KOLD for a confectionary cook-off to create original desserts using native Sonoran Desert ingredients.

The Museum grounds will be open for a twilight viewing of the gardens, animals and exhibits. "Visiting the desert at night is an entirely different experience than during the daytime," states Craig Ivanyi, the Museum's Executive Director. "If Tucsonans haven't visited at night before, they are missing a real treat. The cats begin to prowl, the beavers come out and the Southern Arizona skies alight with constellations. Plus the drive out through Gates Pass and Tucson Mountain Park is worth the price of admission!"

Guests will enjoy sampling a variety of culinary delights created by Tucson Originals' innovative chefs. Over 15 individual restaurants and chefs are expected to dish up an assortment of creations. "We're pleased to be invited to partner with the Desert Museum in this event," shares Coralie Satta, chef/owner of Ghini's French Café.

“The competition will allow many of Tucson’s local chefs to shine and showcase their expertise,” Satta continues. Guests will be able to sample both hot and cold dessert entries and vote for their favorites. Specialty coffees and beverages will be available for sale and each participant will receive a commemorative mug.

The Museum is known for its educational programming so guests will be treated to special presentations of its singular class, Sonoran Supermarket. Learn about native ingredients and fibers and how to use them to create tempting taste treats or weave artistic crafts. The event wouldn’t be complete without soulful music to accentuate the sensual evening atmosphere.

“KOLD, as a co-sponsor of the event, hopes to increase awareness of the fabulous local talent here in Tucson as well as support the Desert Museum in its conservation mission of the Sonoran Desert,” affirms Debbie Bush, KOLD General Manager.

Advanced-sale tickets for the event will sell in advance for $38 ($28 for members) and will go on sale April 23. For more details about the event, visit desertmuseum.org.
